Mayor's Salary Is Placed at $1,000 Per Year

FEW OTHERS GIVEN BOOSTS; BUILDING ORDINANCE SAVED

CITY CLERK AND ALDERMEN ONLY OTHERS SHARING IN $1,200 INCREASES.

SPLIT ON MAYOR

Three Advocate $1,200 Salary — Feeling General That City Must Cut Salaries.

By a vote of 7 to 3, the council last night fixed the mayor's salary at $1,000, an increase of only $100 instead of the $1,000 boost proposed a week ago. The three who voted against the resolution—Aldermen Kelly, Dulin, and Ransom—were for giving the mayor $1,200 a year.

The action was preceded by an informal meeting of the building code and the rest of the building inspector to side-track the ordinance for another two weeks.

Sluggish in General.

A dreadful slaughter of salaried proposals followed the fixing of the mayor's salary. Councilmen wielded their big knives with vigor and precision, so that not one of the courage it was seen that the city clerk was the only one outside of the aldermen and mayor to come through with a whole skin. His salary was boosted from $1,000 to $2,100, as proposed at the last meeting.

The only other raises fixed were $200 for the five aldermen who have been drawing $250 to put them all on the same salary basis and each of the two members of the board of public works getting $200 more.

The entire 1921 salary program will be little over $1,200 more than last year, increases totaling close to $3,000 having been proposed.

Cut All Other Raises.

Salaries increases had been recommended for the plumbing inspector, watch officer, janitor, in addition to the clerk, mayor and aldermen, but the former three will continue on the same old salaries. The board of health's request for a $600 increase for the sanitary inspector was completely ignored in the wholesale campaign to keep down wages.

After the 7-3 split on the mayor's salary, everything moved along rapidly, as though the decision to give as few increases as possible had been reached at a previous get-together session.

When Mayor Welsh announced the salary ordinance would be taken up as the next order of business, Ald. L. D. Horne was first to his feet with the resolution that the mayor's salary be fixed at $1,000. Ald. Walter Helms seconded the resolution. Ald. E. H. Ransom then offered an amendment, that the amount be changed to $1,200, pointing to Appleton, West Allis, and other Wisconsin cities which pay their mayors somewhere around this figure.

Clerk's Salary Fixed.

Ransom's amendment was killed by Aldermen Dulin, Kelly and Ransom, the only ones voting "no."

Hornig got a motion for $2,100 was passed with the same three aldermen voting "no." All aldermen's salaries were then fixed at $200 and the money for the board of public works aldermen was ordered paid out of the general fund.

Alderman Ransom moved for a salary of $2,100 for the city clerk instead of $1,000. This was seconded by Alderman Dulin and passed unanimously.

After that no changes were made in salaries.

The milk ordinance was put over twice upon recommendation of Alderman Dulin.

"I would ask the council to lay it over because Mr. Ransom says there are some more suggestions to be made; we want to get it all fixed up and then pass it right," he said.

Brindell Gets 5 to 10 Years for Building Trust

(By Associated Press.)

New York, Feb. 8.—Frank P. Walsh, of counsel for Thomas J. Mooney, convicted of murder in San Francisco in connection with the preparedness day bomb explosion in 1916, today telegraphed San Francisco authorities apprising them of an alleged confession by one of the witnesses in the case that he had given perjured testimony at the trial.

A special grand jury is investigating a alleged conspiracy to convict Mooney.

Case Was Frame-Up

The witness named by Mr. Walsh was John McDonald, resident of Trenton, N. J. According to Mr. Walsh, McDonald declared in an affidavit the case against Mooney was a "frame-up."

"McDonald swears," Mr. Walsh said, "that he could not identify Mooney as the man he had seen with a suitcase prior to the Preparedness day explosion, although he identified Mooney during the trial. He said District Attorney Rickert, the San Francisco prosecutor, had forced him to make the identification."

Witnesses Coached

McDonald claimed that he was induced, according to Mr. Walsh, to do the same thing he did to the other witness, namely, to identify another defendant and that Rickert remarked:

"These are the men you saw."

Further, McDonald is alleged to have stated he was coached with other witness in testimony to be given.

After that no changes were made in salaries.

Board of Supervisors Too Big; Counties May Have Commission Form

(By Associated Press.)

Janesville, Wis., Feb. 8.—A bill to permit Wisconsin counties to abolish the present boards of supervisors and replace the commission form of county government will be introduced in the legislature tomorrow by Assemblyman E. J. Summerville, Ladysmith.

Ten per cent of the electors voting for governor in the last general election can petition for a referendum election in any county to see whether the change shall be made, the bill provides.

Wisconsin once had the commission form of county government, but the legislature substituted the present boards of supervisors, with a representative from each town and village and each city ward. Besides being so large as to be unwieldy, the boards do not give the citizen a fair representation in the county government. Mr. Summerville contends.

Plan Board of Five

This plan is to substitute boards of five commissioners, serving for four year terms. Counties would be divided into districts, not more than two districts being within any one city. The districts would, as nearly as possible, be equal in population, and the commissioners would be authorized to redistrict the county after each United States census. If the population grew unequal.

The commissioners will take office on the first Monday of June. Commissioners may be removed from office by the governor on the same grounds as other county officers. Absence from

Harding's Boat Late, Stuck in Mud Again

Daytona, Fla., Feb. 8.—

MCADOO AND COX RIVALRY INTENSE

Struggle Is Seen in Effort to Gain Control of Democrats.

Mr. DAVID LAWRENCE. Washington, Feb. 8.—Buck of the telegram just sent by 49 members of the democratic national committee to Chairman George White asking that a meeting of the committee be held at once, is a story of politics that shows how ephemeral the followers of James M. Cox or Old William Gibbs Meadow of New York regard the factors which brought about the overwhelming defeat of democracy in autumn.

So intense is the struggle for control of the democratic committee on the part of both McAdoo and Cox lieutenants that one might think the national convention was next spring instead of four years off and that republicanism had stubbed its toe and was on the downward grade. The outer conflict in democratic ranks reflected accurately in the attitudes and maneuvers of the democratic leaders who seem to think no time should be lost in fighting for their respective idols.

Want White to Retire. Broadly speaking the people who are clamoring for reorganization of the democratic party are urging Mr. White's resignation or complete change in his political attitude, not because of individual ambitions or candidates, nor that part of it is stoutly denied. To hear the McAdoo followers talk one would believe that the movement had no candidate whatsoever in mind, merely the best interests of the party and incidentally of the country in furnishing an intelligent and aggressive opposition to the party in power.

But the truth is neither the McAdoo nor Cox people acknowledge defeat. To them the chance of nominating their man four years hence is just as good as it was in the earlier hours of the deadlock at San Francisco.

Not of Retiring Kind. The situation has many contradictory aspects, but it is obvious from what the written know of George White's personality that the men and women who signed the petition virtually saying here's your hat-what's yours-haven't known that the method they chose was about the last way to brush White out of office. He isn't one of the retiring kind. He learned perseverance and persistence in the Klondike regions when he prospected personally for the previous dust of the trail.

Of course, Mr. White intends to retire, but he is as anxious as anybody that the next chairman of the democratic national committee shall be a man of integrity and progressive views, a man who can give all of his time for the next four years to the resuscitation of a moribund political organization. When Mr. White was in Washington, shortly after his appointment, but before he became prominent, the chairman was unmoved and let it be known that he was planning to stay for a while in his present position.

McAdoo Followers Control.

Now the situation has changed. The McAdoo followers have quietly obtained control of the democratic national committee membership, at least they think they have a majority, therefore they called a meeting called at once. Should Mr. White decline to call one, the Cox followers are of the opinion that before many months are passed the Cox group will have gained control.

The alignment on the surface of course is pro-McAdoo and pro-Cox, but a deeper upheaval is in prospect. The control of all the Wilson forces, including those of the supporters of McAdoo and Palmer at San Francisco, and some of those who supported Cox but who have always been identified with the progressive wing of the party, is coming on the one hand as against the old Murphy-Nugent-Brennan forces and their allies who represent the wet element in the party and anti-Wilsonism besides.

Bryan Is Another Element.

William Jennings Bryan represents an independent element which is more likely to be found against the wet element in the end than with it. In a nutshell, the fight is on in a desire on the part of the western Can't Move Building.

Permit was granted Robert Bear at the last meeting to move a frame building from Main and Third streets into the First ward, but objections of people owning property near the proposed location caused the council to reconsider its action upon motion of Ald. E. L. Badger. The order permitting moving was then rescinded.

Publish Tax Report.

A bulletin of the tax commission showing tax rates in all Wisconsin towns was ordered published after Mayor Welsh's request in which he said: "We want the citizens to see just where Janesville stands in taxes. The councilmen owe it to the citizens and themselves to have it published."

The bulletin shows Janesville near the bottom of the list with its tax rate of $2.11.

Leaders of the party and certain progressives to form a partnership, choose a westerner for chairman of the national committee, and make the democratic party a truly progressive instrumentality that will afford refuge to those voters who in the congressional elections two years hence on the presidential election of 1924 may have come to conclusion that Harding administration is not progressive.

The prospect of a similar progressive versus reactionary fight inside the republican party is of course getting brighter every day. The whole situation even at this early date is beginning more and more to resemble the era in our political history which came to a climax in the Bull Moose movement of 1912.

NEWSPAPER AD BRINGS RESULTS, CLOTHIERS ARE TOLD

Milwaukee, Feb. 8.—The newspaper has an unique distinction among the advertising media that a man meets with in his daily life," said Ed. Wolff, advertising manager of a local clothing house before the Wisconsin Retail Clothiers' association today. "Every other form of advertising is laid before him without cost to him; it is thrust upon him as soon as he reads it.

The newspaper reader, for instance, sees practically a list of all of his desirable buyers. This gives the advertiser a self-selected group of the best buying power in his community. These people are trained to read and comprehend every day. If the newspaper is a worthy one, they are led to believing what they see in its columns. The advertisements, then, if carefully prepared, are accepted with the same belief that is given to the editorials and the news columns.

"As an advertising man of 20 years' experience, I heartily believe in posters, moving picture slides, in direct by-mail literature, in newsletters and other forms of good productive advertising, but I have never met anything that brings such immediate results, in large quantities, as the daily newspaper; and if I were a retail man I would see to it that the newspaper of my town worked for me every day to build up my business."

Seek U. S. Control.

Government control of the farmers' cooperative attempts is being asked for by the National Farm Bureau federation. It is pointed out that the farmer can hold his crop only for a year, until the next harvest, and whatever is held over must go to market for the market. The farmer cannot control his crop, for a year, like the factory limit production. He must keep on no matter what market losses he suffers.

Rock county farmers want the right kind of leadership in state or nation. The power of the farm bureau with three or four million members can be realized. Local members do not want that power to run amuck or alone rule. They want to be in their business and not to be left on the bright side of the situation.

The same idea of optimism and sticking to the business was brought out by the other speakers. Fred Taves, Beloit County Agent, R. T. Glasco and Col. W. T. Dooley.

The secretary's report showed conditions exceptionally favorable and gave some idea of the work done during the year.

Poster Again Honored.

The election of officers resulted in Ed. Parker being re-elected to the office of president and T. P. Shreve to that of secretary and treasurer, while W. W. Elie, Cambria, was elected vice-president, the office held in 1920 by S. Neprud, Wiroqua.

The matter of raising the dues, after a lengthy discussion, was referred to the executive committee, of which L. C. Johnson was re-elected chairman and R. M. Larson, Sheboygan, selected to take the place of Charles Peterson, Rosedale.

The meeting closed with many joining the organization.

FIGHT BEGIN' TO FREE ERWIN BERGOLD

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 8.—The legal battle to free Erwin R. Bergold, wealthy Philadelphia, draft evader, from the disciplinary corps of habeas corpus, began today in federal court at Kansas City, Kansas. The case of Frank Bergold, brother of Grover C. Bergold, who recently offered an escape into Germany from the United States, is of nation-wide interest because of the legal points involved.

Court officials said the cases of many other persons tried or awaiting trial by court martial for violation of the selective service laws are now outcome. The legal position is in sight of a military court martial to try Bergold, who is not actually in the service, as one who registered for the draft but failed to respond when called.

In addition to his regular pay each committee man may receive $4 a day for committee work when the board is not in session, but the total paid for committee service shall not exceed his regular salary. He is also entitled to six cents a mile for every mile necessarily traveled going to and from not more than 12 commission meetings each year; and 6 cents a mile for every mile driven in the discharge of his official duties.

The proposed law will not apply to counties having a population of more than 250,000.

Some of the present boards of supervisors have as high as 60 members, and few counties have less than 20 members. It is said the result is a board so large as to be impractical; Mr. Summerville says, and the work could be performed more economically and with better results by a smaller body, he believes.

To Many Offices.

"There are too many offices in every county," he said. "In my home county of Rock there are 337 elective and appointive county, town, city and village officials, exclusive of clerks, stenographers, school teachers, and other employees. Of the 337 fully 500 are elective.

The cost of elections is becoming a burden. Rock county has approximately 18,000 population, or roughly 3,500 families. With 500 elective officers there is an official to every seven families."

Attorneys for Armour and company and Swift and company filed with the district supreme court a new plan for selling their stockyard interests.

PLAN BIG CHANGES IN BUILDING CODE

Ordinance and Office Saved, but Whole Thing Will be Fully Revised.

"In investigation I find that the work of the building inspector corresponds with that of the plumbing inspector," he continued. "Mr. Blair was kept busy all last summer with the rush of building and many times had to go to the inspection.

Called upon for a statement, Mr. Blair told of the 1,000 permits issued in the 13 weeks he held office in 1920, an average of 22 per week, collecting $1,371.29 in fees, $36 per week. He reported 1,183 inspections or $1 a week. Some object to the limit on alterations, but most cities require a permit on jobs larger than this."

Here Alderman Dulin entered the discussion with a request that the contractors say something instead of going out on the street corners afterward and criticizing.

"I don't believe if a man is going to build a house or a chimney on his own land that he should be required to come down to the city hall and pay one dollar for a permit," he stated. "I don't see anything right about it, but I'd like to be enlightened by some of the contractors."

BANKS WILL HELP TOBACCO GROWERS

Will Do Anything Reasonable Is General Feeling—Await Farmers' Proposition

Janesville banks will extend "reasonable credit" to the Rock county tobacco growers in their attempt to pack the 1920 crop through a speculative pool. All Janevilles will consider the tobacco pool finance plan for the next two days and will have definite program worked out for the committee appointed during the meeting last Saturday to investigate the feasibility of financing such a pool.

For the success of the pool, the growers will have to have a liberal long time credit. Attempts to buck the tobacco speculators in the past show that a full cash value is realized on a crop. There are instances of three packing remaining unsold, which the banks have financed.

Market Uncertain.

The banks are skeptical on the future of the tobacco market. They all admit tobacco is a dangerous thing to handle for a long time because of the uncertainty of the market values. The bankers desire to know exactly what percent of the market value of the crops the growers will get after deduction of overhead. The Conant bill will consider the tobacco pool finance plan for the next two days and will have definite program worked out for the committee appointed during the meeting last Saturday to investigate the feasibility of financing such a pool.

The Conant bill will consider the tobacco pool finance plan for the next two days and will have definite program worked out for the committee appointed during the meeting last Saturday to investigate the feasibility of financing such a pool.

The growers' move is causing much concern among the bankers. The success or failure is almost dependent on the growers obtaining financial backing. So the members of the association have their hands full in obtaining a report to be made at the meeting next Saturday.

Loan for Farmers.

"Responsible farmers can always get money," declared Harry S. Hart, First National. "We would have to have time and leisure before we could answer on a matter of such importance of extending aid to tobacco pool. However in any case this bank realizes the importance of the grower and farmer, and will do whatever is reasonable."

"Farmers can borrow some money on warehouse receipts," said A. E. Davis, First City bank. "They would have to have valid notes and get their organization into perfection to obtain bankable papers. It is a big question and one too important to decide in a minute. We are interested in the grower's welfare and his interests."

"Tobacco is a ticklish thing," declared Frank Bladon, Merchants and Savings. "You never know the exact amount in each time loan on warehouse receipts. On the matter of loan loans, we would have to consider the proposition in more detail; it cannot be decided in a minute no matter how much you want to aid." Similar statements were made by Frank H. Jackman, president of the Rock county National bank, and John W. Dady, president of the Bank of Southern Indiana. "This bank will do anything that is reasonable," said Mr. Jackman.

At the State Capital

Madison, Wis., Feb. 8.—Income of Wisconsin taxpayers will bear the brunt of increased rates with a tendency to lighten the load now carried by general property. If any changes are made by the present legislature, it will be by the present legislature.

All taxation measures of importance have now been prepared, and all of them provide for a shift of the burden from general property to incomes. The proposed measure of Senator Arnold is the most drastic in its provisions for raising revenue from the earnings of taxpayers.

Land agents would be required to give a full description in writing of the property sold, and to have this statement attached to the deed or contract. A duplicate copy would then be filed with the department of agriculture to be used in proceedings for misrepresentation or fraud is later charged by the purchaser.

The law would not apply to land valued at more than $30 an acre if adopted in its present form.

"There is no intention to interfere with any legitimate business in lands," Senator Titus said. "Businessmen will make it easier to sell good land, and would stop the sale of worthless real estate."

Removal of the personal property clause in the income tax is done away with in each of the measures brought forward. Corporations now exempt.

The bill of Senator Severson is purely a surtax bill, starting with incomes of $5,000, which it would tax an additional 2 per cent, gradually increasing until a maximum of 6 per cent was reached in incomes of $10,000 or over. The Conant bill adds a deduction of $1,000 to the income tax entirely, starting with incomes of $3,000 which would be taxed an additional one-half per cent, and increasing to a maximum of 10 per cent for incomes of $16,000 and above.

Senator Arnold's income tax bill does not deal with the surtax, but with a one per cent tax on incomes of $5,000 and gradually increasing to incomes of $20,000 or over would be taxed 25 per cent. The measure of Assemblyman Dahl would lower the exemption rate for unmarried men to $800 and for married men to $1,200.

Senator Severson proposed to raise $6,000,000 by his surtax. Senator Conant would raise $16,000,000 through applying his bill to the same incomes as the Severson bill, his claims while Senator Arnold is of the opinion that adoption of his plan would result in a revenue of $26,000,000 to the state, or over half the operating expenses during 1919-20.

Both surtax bills create a special tax fund, which is apportioned to the educational institutions of the state and to the highway fund.

Safeguarding of Wisconsin sellers against fraudulent misrepresentation by land companies is aimed at in a bill of Senator W. A. Titus. Paul du Lac, introduced this morning. The bill.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Mary Dunphy
Mrs. Mary Dunphy, 74, a resident of this city for 35 years died suddenly Sunday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Plotz, Milwaukee. She was born in Watertown June 24, 1847 and moved to this city with her parents when but a child. She was united in marriage to James Dunphy, June 1866. He preceded her in death 10 years ago. The couple had three children: James, Mrs. Pauline before 50 women at the high school yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Falconer asked why all the money spent on the police forces of cities with no police woman to look after the women and girls.

"Some money should be spent on preventive measures and no girl should go into a police court surrounded only by men," she said.

She detailed various places where the services of a police woman would be most needed such as the public dances, parks, playgrounds, theaters and railroad stations, declaring that nearly all cities are putting in these officers who work under the chief of police, have the power of arrest, and full pay. She noted that Janesville has no probation officer, showing that the duties of this office could be embodied in that of police woman.

Mrs. Falconer has served on the juvenile court at Chicago, has been a judge of state home for delinquent girls in Pennsylvania. She believes that wise and kindly preventive work, in combating temptation, is one of the answers to the problem. The custodial care of feeble minded girls is another thing advocated by her, and care to keep the young girls in school and off from the streets, was also being advocated.

Miss Falconer was recently appointed by Miss Martha Riley of the state board of health, and their work in the city included a talk before the 300 pupils of the high school, yesterday morning, a visit and conference at the training school for teachers, a talk before the older girls of the vocational school, and the address before the women at the high school in the afternoon.

Miss Riley in her talk to the girls made the plea for a clean mind, clean body, wholesome, with useful employment. She advocated plain business suits when seeking employment and asked that they eliminate the short tight skirts, thin waists and high-heeled pumps with gossamer stockings.

"Less paint on the faces, and more clothes on the body" is her motto. Hints on health and how to keep physically fit was the theme of her various talks before different groups.

PROTECTION FOR GIRLS IS URGED

Police Women Big Need in All Cities Says Speaker at Local Meetings

Added jurisdiction for both Justice and Municipal Courts of Beloit will be given the Beloit members of Beloit County Bar association following a meeting at Beloit last night.

A tentative amendment to the act of the legislature under which the Beloit municipal court was created was drawn up for presentation for passage by the legislature.

It is proposed by the Beloit lawyers to increase the jurisdiction of the Beloit Justice court to cases involving a maximum of $500 in damages or $200 in fines.

The Beloit municipal court may try civil cases involving a maximum of $2,000 in equitable actions, mortgages, foreclosures and such.

All criminal cases including murder and excepting treason under the amendment could be tried in municipal court there. It is proposed to amend the act so that the Beloit municipal court may try civil cases involving a maximum of $2,000 in equitable actions, mortgages, foreclosures and such.

The action was in response to a request from the bandstand committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

Approximately $4,200 will be needed, the committee says. The remaining $1,700 will be subscribed by individuals, according to present plans. It is hoped that the money in a few days' work can be started this month or next if possible.

The petition from the committee was signed by A. J. Gibbons, Burr Tolles, L. E. Drake, Frank Britt, L. E. Amerson, W. J. Bourmann, Peter Morton, and Charles Snyder. The first ballot showed 4 to 2 for acquisition of the city of Beloit.

Witnesses called for the state were Fred Beiley, Frank Britt, who made the raid Oct. 12 on Canary's place, and Prof. R. G. Smith, Beloit.

W. H. Doughty, representing Canary, stressed that "When man's liberty is dependent upon the opinion of a chemist, we're getting down to pretty fine points."

BOY BREAKS RIB IN FALL OFF WAGON

Falling from the top of a coal load while playing at the annual coal company Saturday, Albert Gimbel, 12, of Beloit, was injured and sustained a fractured rib. A GREAT BOULEVARD OF TREES.

Eventually the cement road will be built from the county line on the south to Edgerton on the north. It will in time be a great driveway for thousands of tourists who will travel from the south to farther north in search of air and scenery. It will be THE great highway into Wisconsin. And that being the prospect the road should also be attractive. We need more trees.

In time to come their value will increase. Climate and crops depend largely on preservation of woods and retention of moisture. Everything that will add to the forest growth without interfering with the tillable land should be done.

Attorney General Morgan has stated that the courts recognize trees as a beautifying asset and the state highway commission has the power to prevent the removal or mutilation of trees on highways even though a public utility may want to do so, and the greatest offenders and destroyers of trees on streets and highways have been our public utilities.

Trees on the county highways ought well be planted in groups at a distance of a mile or half mile, as markings with native shrubbery planted in regular order. At the entrances to towns and in spots along the highway avenues of trees can be planted as to add to the picturesque beauty of the drive. When trees would cut off the scenic view they may be omitted.

This work should be taken up in an organized way and started now. But it ought not to stop at the Janesville-Edgerton-Beloit road; it should also take in the other important highways in the county, the Black and Yellow trail, which will carry a heavy tourist traffic from Chicago westward, and on other roads which add to the attractiveness of Rock county.

MR. DAWES, CUSES WORDS AND CONGRESS.

About all Charles Grosvenor Dawes, erstwhile head of the supply department of the A. E. F. in France, has received from his appearance and evidence before the congressional committee on expenditures in the War department, has been publicly. His pyrotechnic exhibit of peacock feathers is about the only new thing added to the committee's findings. He contributed nothing as he apparently designed, either to or cleftwise the very fact that there was such a committee. Gen. Dawes' contribution sounded all right at first reading. Many had an idea that the proper thing to say was to shout "Hi! 'em again, Charlie!"

The old time lumberjack, the mate on the ancient Mississippi river steamboat, the mule driver, the army in Flanders and other noted and immortal cussers have all faded into the evanescent when they stand up with the incomparable Dawes. He was raised up in the central part of Wisconsin where cussing is pursued as a fine art.

The House committee had a task before it. Its business was to examine expenditures in the War department. It was in a word an auditing committee. It was not political, but for business. Mr. Dawes seems to labor under the belief that the committee was entirely political. There has been criticism of the conduct of the war; there will be more. It has not been leveled against America's decisive contribution to the war's result, but against the excessive cost in money and materials and the lives of men in that contribution. Merely political criticism has generally fallen on deaf ears.

The criticism that has cut home, the criticism that has chiefly influenced the opinion of the average citizen, has not come from the politicians of either party. It has come and it continues to come from the American Legion, the men who fought and won the war afield and afloat. The purpose of the Legion's criticism in this matter, we believe, has been to date above reproach; it has been prompted solely by the desire to set before the eyes of the American people the mistakes of the last war in order that these mistakes may be avoided in the next war; to reduce if possible the number of our unnecessary dead in the wars to come.

CRIME, IMMORALITY AND THE MOVIES.

Missouri is having a rather interesting discussion over the movies and a proposed law to censor pictures. The Missouri act is patterned after the Pennsylvania law. "There is nothing of the Blue Law in this bill" was the contention of its sponsors, a committee of Fifty representing many civic organizations of St. Louis, at a hearing as reported in the Kansas City Star. It was charged that the "National Board of Censorship" was a "fake" and that the "National Board of Review" was paid by the producers and had no authority in law. "We do not allow naked men and women to walk on the streets, so why should they be permitted in the movies?" An 18-year-old boy arrested in St. Louis stated that he had learned how to rob a safe from seeing it done in a movie.

"Fifty per cent of the young girls in trouble are traceable to the uncensored movie," was another charge supported by many incidents recited. George Rheinhardt and Otto Schmid, representing the Federated Catholic Societies of Kansas City, said it was difficult enough to raise children in cities without the influence of the crime films. "Pictures which would have shocked five years ago because of the growing boldness are taken for granted today," said Mr. Rheinhardt.

The Kansas censorship was cited as giving satisfaction, and it was averred that it would be a

A "Red" River to Tame

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—For a thousand miles the Colorado river plunges steeply through a series of the deepest gorges on earth, of which the Grand Canyon is the most famous. Its name means simply Red River, and a "red" it is, in the popular sense of the term, for it has never submitted to American civilization, and it frequently rises in its wrath and upsets what little civilization there is along its banks.

Incidentally about one million horsepower annually go to waste in the activities of this untrained stream, and hundreds of thousands of acres on either side of it are blistering desert—one of the greatest wildernesses left in America—that might be irrigated and transformed into fertile farms by this same river.

The suggestion is made that, having departed all the alleged European reds, the great American government now turn its attention to this native red. The suggestion emanates, not in exactly those terms, from the former Secretary of the Interior, Franklin K. Lane, and it is endorsed emphatically by engineers who have studied the problem of damming the Red river.

The country, we are told, is suffering from over-production and unemployment, while its great need is for good farm lands that men can get at reasonable prices. Here is a chance to put some of the unemployed to work, help the mills of business make a new start, create thousands of farms and millions of horsepower in electrical energy.

Yesterday's Haskin letter explained Secretary Lane's plan for doing reclamation work by means of a bond issue. This article takes the specific case of the Colorado river, and sets forth exactly what might be done with it, in the opinion of Mr. William Mulholland, chief engineer of the water department in Los Angeles, who is a well known authority on such problems, and who has made a special study of the Colorado river.

According to all the stories told, this Colorado river is about the most tempestuous stream in existence. By government agreement and universal consent it is not a navigable stream and its waters may, therefore, be impounded and made available for both irrigation and power.

There is an added reason in the fact that the Colorado river occasionally runs wild and tears up things generally, having been the direct cause of many great losses in the past, especially in its lower reaches. The proposed controls will make this damage impossible in the future.

At the two largest proposed dam sites, which Mr. Mulholland has inspected, the side walls are already there in towering cliffs many hundred feet high. It is necessary, therefore, to build only the cross or gate dam, and this again is made easier by the material being practically all on the site.

Mr. Mulholland figures that he could put in the two largest dams with complete hydroelectric machinery for the conversion of all available power, which will be used for irrigation and distribution for thirty million dollars, and that these two sites alone would produce over six hundred thousand electric horsepower as well as enough available water to irrigate over six hundred thousand acres. Leaving out of the calculation entirely the immense value of the water for irrigation, placing the cost solely on the power produced, this figures at fifty thousand per horsepower. As to any user of power what this means in value. Figuring generously for interest, sinking fund, labor and replacement, the annual cost per horse power is so small that a market for it is assured at once, or certainly for all of it within five years.

The railroads would like this cheap power. To the mining enterprises scattered through these states this power will enable a profit where there is now a doubt. To the municipalities and the small towns and their citizens, it means cheap light, heat and power. And for the country as a whole there will be a vast economic saving. According to Mr. Mulholland's hasty figures, in reply to a question, one million horsepower expressed in kilo terms taking power value on the basis of two pounds of coal per horsepower hour amounts to the same as the consumption of one thousand tons of coal per hour under the very best practice. This means that the Colorado river, when harnessed and put to work, will save the nation twenty-four thousand tons of coal per day.

Mr. Mulholland has figured on three large and several small dams and power sites at the various best points along the river; and this natural advantage, skilfully developed, will enable the best distribution of water and the power also. He figures that the whole work could be finished and put in operation within four years.

To sum it up, the American people can take a decent and make it one of the most productive sections of the country and a sure crop section. It will give homes and farms to say fifty to one hundred thousand American citizens and their families. It will take some of the burdens from the railroads by selling them power at a much lower cost than they can make it. It will stop all floods in this section, some of which have cost millions. It will enable this desolate region to produce millions every year in direct taxes and indirect taxes from its trade and commerce.

It will cost the American people nothing to do all this except to stand behind it, after all the assets are pledged, and to give the bond issues the same status as the farm loan bonds now have.

good thing for Missouri. There is a growing movement all over the nation to shut down tight on the licentiousness and crime of the pictures. William A. Brady, who attempted to show that the sex pictures on the screen now were demanded by the public, at Chicago, left that city with an emphasized impression that he had only made the need of a censorship more emphasized by his defense, according to the reports of the hearing given him by the aldermen.

The producers may as well take warning from an awakened public. They cannot continue the bold raid on public decency without inviting restriction that will be both painful and hampering.

The producers have it in their own hands as to whether they will defy the public sense of decency or move for the support of the public as a whole.

IN THE MATTER OF RENTS.

Action by the Members' Forum of the Chamber of Commerce in the matter of rents will be interesting to every family in Janesville. In the recent adjustments of living costs and the meeting of the new and lower levels of prices and wages, the item of rent is of great importance. It is a fixed family charge that cannot be avoided or cut down without the consent of both parties to the agreement. Property valuation has been raised in many instances in Janesville to be in harmony with the increased rental. It must be remembered that the rents were raised first before the property was put on the tax roll. It must also be remembered that rents were raised largely because of the demand being far in excess of the number of houses and rooms to rent and bidding for residence places inspired greed.

The discussion in the Members' Forum and the appointment of a committee to both investigate and act as a "next best friend" in cases of rent complaints will do much to solve the rent problem in the city.

Senator Ridgway is making an excellent record in the legislature. Rock county may well be pleased with all its representatives—Messrs. Ridgway, Matheson and Pifel.

"Pictures which would have shocked five years ago because of the growing boldness are taken for granted today," said Mr. Ridgway.

The Kansas censorship was cited as giving satisfaction, and it was averred that it would be a

THE JOYOUS PAST.

This is what he used to say: "Take your laughter while you may, Love the sky when it is blue, Let the sunshine warm you through, Take your fill of earthly joy, Play the lover and the boy, Soon, too soon, glad lips grow dumb, Soon enough will sorrow come."

Then to him the sorrows came, Quenched was summer's gentle flame, Round his home the tempest blew, Chilling all the joys he knew. Grief and age were his to share, Winter's snow was in his heart; Even then he'd smile and say: "Life was lovely yesterday."

"Battered to this heart of mine, And these eyes have lost their shine, From the garden I have known Many tender blooms have flown, But how rich I've been and glad Through the summers I have had; Come the joys of long ago, Come these scars of hurt and woe."

"Lips of beauty I have pressed, Caused this hurt within my breast, Poor am I today and sad, For the joys of life I've had; Life has given what death must take, Love has built what time must break, And though now the joy has flown, All God's blessings I have known."

Senator Rolandi Ricci, new Italian ambassador to the United States, is expected to arrive and assume his new duties in the near future.

He was named to succeed Baron Camillo Romano Avizzana, who returned to his country in November on leave of absence.

Like Baron Carlo Aliotti, who was first designated for the Washington post in succession to Baron Romano Avizzana, Senator Ricci is a friend of Premier Giolitti; indeed, Rolandi Ricci was made senator in 1916 by Giolitti's former administration by royal decree dated March 1, 1912; also, the first news of the appointment came from Turin, Giolitti's home, on Oct. 26, when it was also announced that Senator Francesco Martino di Strampoli would succeed Giolitti in Berlin on Oct. 1 that he had suffered no apparent ear trouble; the nasal obstruction has apparently not been so great as to lead to faulty development (deformity) of the face, the occlusion of the teeth, the shape of the hard palate, the development of the nose chambers. A SWEETHEART AT THIRTY

The Story of a Woman's Transformation

BY MARION RUBINCAM

CHAPTER LXV WE SEE BUD.

Nothing was ever happened like James' visit much good as the two weeks' visit Helen paid us. But it was not enough. Under the stimulation of this practical-minded woman, who yet had enough of the poetic impulse in her to appeal to all that was vague and undeveloped and beauty-loving about James, the boy fairly blossomed out.

But the time of his visit was too short to do more than rouse him a little from the inaction into which he had sunk. Two forces were always at work: James; he was the logical temperament to come between dull-minded, phlegmatic Laura, and sensitive, idealistic Vi. But the force to create something useful or lovely, to make something fine of himself, was never quite strong enough.

I still feel that perhaps I might have been able to accomplish something for James if I do not know. After all, as Helen said, that should come from within one's own soul.

The mother who kills this vital spark in one of her children is surely as wicked as the mother who kills the child that is yet to come. And this was Estelle's worse crime—that she systematically stamped out the bright, jolly boy and girl just as she systematically killed her husband's love-sacrificing all to her little rods of economy and common sense.

But there was no one to worry over James then. I had my time more than taken up covering the hard routine of work in the house.

"You simply can't get rid of the full-house cleaning," I said. "And we said to ourselves, 'We wouldn't."

"Thought I never heard of anyone cleaning house this time of year!" she

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON.

Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, In Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two young married women and love our husbands very much. One of us has two children and the other has one. Our husbands are out a good share of the evenings enjoying themselves, while we stay at home and take care of the babies.

We think it is all right for men to go and enjoy themselves two or three nights a week. At every time we ask them to go with us we take the children along with us. Of course we love our babies and take them every place we go, but we get so tired of staying home alone night or evenings.

Don't you think our bubbles should take care of the children one or two times a week and let us go a little more, as the places we want to go to are the homes of our relatives or a show? As the spending money we might get, etc., etc.

ONLY AND HEARTBROKEN

Marriage carries with it certain obligations. A man should know that he is giving up the privileges of bachelorhood when he takes a wife and a woman should be willing to give up evening dances and shows during the years when her babies are dependent upon her care. People who give themselves up entirely to their babies little realize returning in the end more happiness is gained by a close relationship between parents and children than could possibly be found in a poolroom, show or a club.

It seems to me that you could visit your relatives in the day time and take the children along.

Your husbands are not doing their duty to you. On occasions when it is necessary I do think they should stay home with the children so that you can go.

"Homeless Helen": You must learn to control your feelings and your thoughts. With will power you can put aside one thought and replace it with definite thinking along a different line. Of course your thoughts will wander back to the forbidden subject at first, and then you will have to put them aside again for thoughts which do not bring happiness.

WHAT SHALL I DO?

A Contest for the Prettiest Dear Miss Page—We are planning on a contest soon to determine the prettiest lady at our party. How do we go about this? Ross and Joe."

You can conduct your voting either verbally or by means of ballots. The latter is much the better way because it obviates any danger of hurt feelings. You can either pass slips of paper to write the name of the person to be awarded with the most beauty, or you can type the names of all those who are expected on sheets of paper and have the voters check the names of their preferences. Then, of course, these are counted up and the winner's name announced. It is usually customary to make the winner a gift, or give her a prize of some sort. Why don't you add to the interest of your contest by voting also for the whitest and the sweetest girls?

Maybe Santa Made a Mistake? Miss Page—At Christmas I sent a very large box of chocolates to a girl, but she didn't acknowledge that she had received it, by look, word or action. What should my relations be toward this girl?—Your doubtful, Buck."

Of course, there's a chance, Buck, that the box of chocolates didn't reach the young lady and that she felt a wee bit hurt that you didn't think of her at Christmas. If you're still in her, or, of course, she has been very rude, ungrateful, etc., don't thank you for it. But just in case there was a mistake, and in order to avoid a misunderstanding, if I were you I would act toward her exactly as you did before Christmas, and then make it a point to say something like this: "You never did say whether I picked out the right kind of chocolates to please you at Christmas, did you like them?" Then you'll be sure to know what's wrong.

BASEBALL TIPS

Sioux City, Iowa.—The contracts of two promising young ball players have been received by the Sioux City Western league team—Leo Casey, an outfielder, and Kenneth Martin a pitcher. FIGHT ASPIRANTS TO GET A CHANCE WITH LOCAL CLUB

Delay in issuing a bond to guarantee the security of the Janesville Athletic club, organized by the local lodge of the A. F. & M., because of red tape, the elements is holding back sending of a state license to permit boxing here, according to the directors of the club. This matter is hoped to be straightened out today, according to President McKinley, and everything expedited so that the game may get under way.

Unknown aspirants to boxing fame, we have the chance in Janesville, according to Matchmaker Charlie Riley. However, they have to show that they have some of the real goods before they will step into a local ring.

Riley's New Plan.

Riley has a novel plan that he will work out. Something of a speedy boxer himself, he will take all applicants and box with them himself in training quarters after the license is received. In this manner he will be able to judge the qualities of the man and know whether the fellow is only after the money or a willing and able fighter.

This club is planned to make sure that shows here will be kept up to snuff. Every possible effort will be made to get only talent that will make the shows worth while, even in the curtain raisers.

Sentiment for the fights grows daily. It is a continuous question, "When are you going to have the first bouts?" The last part of this month, probably, is the answer coming from the club.

Britton Shakes Lewis to Defeat, Retaining Title

First Church League Games on Wednesday

New York, Feb. 8.—Like the pro-welter-weight champion, promises to welter-weight champion, promises to go on forever. The veteran Chicago boxer retained his title Monday night, despite the assaults of Ted Lewis of England, most persistent challenger of the ring, in a fifteen-round exhibition of brilliant boxing at Madison Square Garden.

A crowd of about ten thousand witnessed the match, and as Andrew Hinrichs summoned Britton to the center of the ring holding his hand aloft as an indication of victory and presenting the 37 year old champion with a diamond studded belt presented by Promoter Richard Shaefer, who had strengthened the belt.

The efforts of the game association are to make Rock river an even better place for fishing than it now is. Their idea is to make the stream famous so that it will attract sportsmen from Chicago and various parts of the middle west just as Lake Koshkonong—a widening of the river—is known throughout the country over for its duck hunting.

The stakes include two events for pacers and four for trotters, a grand total of $18,000 being hung up.
